

Emails in the folders titled "Communication Set 1" and "Communication Set 2" detail my attempts to communicate with the owner and staff of Armadillophone, a Canadian firm that sells encrypted cellphones. In July 2022 I purchased two cellphones from the company. Within minutes of activating them both were hacked. I attempted to correspond with the owner of the company, Mr. Noy, and his staff but found my contacts were either replied to oddly or for the majority of the time not at all. I tried by text, email, and phone to no avail. I strongly suspect my attempts were blocked by hackers to prevent me from returning the phones for forensic inspection by the Armadillophone technicians.

I referred the issue to Det. Inuma at HPD who stated he called the company limiting his "investigation" to doing no more than I did. He demanded I turn the phones over to him for "safekeeping" whereas previously he stated he had no international jurisdiction in the matter. Had I given him my phones of which he previously stated he had no claim I would have never seen them again. Considering the deceit, trickery, and malice he exhibited toward me during the course of our interaction, and the fact he used me not delivering the phones to him (on a day which he specified and then was not available) as an excuse to close all my cases, I'm absolutely certain had I given him the devices they would have been erased to remove the evidence of hacking.

My repeated attempts via email to coordinate the return delivery of the hacked cellphone to Mr. Noy failed. The folder titled "Blocked Phone Example" gives details about the attempts.
